

Job Seeker's Daily 7[©]

A Tool for Full-Time Job Seekers

AACE

July 27, 2016

Overview

Share a tool

Reveal the motivation

Discuss the review of literature

Barbara L. Fredrickson, Ph.D.

Carol S. Dweck, Ph.D

Job Seeker's Daily 7

- Earn seven points per day, five days per week:

5 points Have an employment interview and write (a) thank you(s)

5 points Attend a career fair, having properly prepared

4 points Obtain services from the Career Center at The University of Alabama (emails earn 4 points maximum / day regardless of how many are exchanged)

4 points Attend a networking function and network with at least 5 people

3 points Conduct an informational interview with someone in your field

3 points Apply for a position for which you meet the minimal qualifications including a tailored cover letter

2 points One hour of volunteer work related to your field of study

1 point One hour spent looking for openings online or networking (includes LinkedIn but not Facebook) and/or conducting employer research

1 point Follow up after an interview or contact from an employer

1 point Document in detail your day's job seeking activities

1 point Document in detail your day's job-seeking activities

½ point Apply for a position for which you do not meet the minimal qualifications, including a tailored cover letter

0 points Apply for a position without a tailored cover letter (unless responding to a true blind ad)

You can complain because the rosebush has thrones, or you can rejoice because the thorn bush has roses. It's all in how you look at things.

-- Abraham Lincoln

“The pessimist sees difficulty in every opportunity.

The optimist sees the opportunity in every difficulty.”

-- Winston Churchill

Questions?

Thank you!

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA[®]